NUMBER 33.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

Judge R. W. Bingham, Chairman Of Burley Tobacco Growers Association

Makes Convincing Talk To Growers

DESCRIBES MARKETING METHODS IN EUROPE.

Before a crowd of 500 Garrard county tobacco growers and declaring that what the French and Danes could do in the way of co-operative marketing the tobacco growers of Kentucky can do, and the growers of Kentucky tobacco in Kentucky and the burley district have "just as much sense" as the orange and raisin growers of California, Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, chairman of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, told these people last Saturday afternoon at the court house that he is absolutely convinced of the wisdom of the proposed plan of marketing and confident that the producers will have the good sense to adopt it in time to make it effective for the handling of this year's crop.

This was Judge Bingham's first public address since his return from Europe, where he studied the co-operative marketing systems in use in France and Denmark. Incidentally he told the growers of Garrard the pledging of more than 50,000,000 pounds of tobacco to the new system within two weeks, and that result obtained with an intensive campaign only in a few of the counties reporting. He said there was not the least doubt of the adoption of the plan when once the growers in all the counties had it presented to them.

"Some of the growers object to surrendering their 'independence,'" he said, in discussing the objections to the plan. "When in God's name, have you had any independence under the present system of marketing?" he asked, and the crowd applauded.

Judge Bingham reviewed the work from its inception and his audience frequently cheered his statements in regard to the absolute necessity of the growers getting together as men and adopting a sane and modern marketing system for the handling of their tobacco, a system, according to the speaker, no longer an experiment, but one which had been tried and found workable and practicable not only in Europe but in connection with the handling of the perishable products of California and Washington.

Tribute Paid Judge Bingham

Judge Lewis L. Walker presided and paid tribute to the unselfish work of Judge Bingham in financing and starting the temporary organization. He announced a series of meetings Monday at 2 o'clock of precinct chairmen with their workers to obtain the name of every grower in Garrard and another meeting of the six precincts near town, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Judge Walker introduced Judge Bingham as the head of "this great movement for the benefit of the tobacco growers." He declared it the only business like sensible attempt to solve the problem of the burley tobacco growers of the burley district. "He said that if this movement failed it meant disaster to the Burley district. For the first time, Judge Walker declared, the growers have the benefit of an unselfish leadership.

Judge Bingham told of the success of co-operative marketing in California and how he became convinced that the plan was applicable to the Kentucky tobacco situation and thoroughly workable. He told of his observations in the country section of California—the good homes, the good churches, the high standard of living in the country districts—quite as high as in the cities. He said he looked for the answer and he found it in the Cooperativa Marketing Association.

Judge Bingham told how the old system of marketing forced the manufacturers to buy all the tobacco they would want for a year within a period of eight weeks. Judge Bingham said the growers could have tobacco graded just as well as the manufacturers and speculators, even if they had to take the growers away from their present employers.

One concern, Judge Bingham said, employed about 500 buyers in the burley district. He said the good business men among the manufac-

NEW PARTY Lincoln Independent Party With All Colored Candidates.

A movement is being started in Louisville that is calculated to have great and far reaching effects on the political status of the Race not only in Louisville but throughout the state and nation. Great discontent and dissatisfaction has been expressed by many of the more thoughtful members of the race in Louisville over the utter disregard of the Republican administration shown them and this discontent is crystallizing into an effort to oust the Republicans, says the Louisville News, a race paper published in Louisville. Many there who have been so bitter at the Republican administration they have declared themselves as willing to vote the straight Democratic ticket.

As a result of this dissatisfaction certain of the men and women active in the affairs for the betterment of the Race are considering the formation of a new party which will put a ticket in the field composed entirely of colored men and women.

New Cashier At Bank Of Bryantsville

In order to give his entire time to the canvass of his election for County Judge, of Garrard county, Mr. J. C. Williams has resigned his position as cashier of the Bank of Bryantsville, an office he has filled successfully several years. At a meeting of the directors of this bank, Mr. Russell Brown, who has served as assistant cashier, for three years, was unanimously elected its cashier. The selection of Mr. Brown is an admirable one and a man thoroughly capable of filling this responsible office. The Bank of Bryantsville is one of the foremost banks in the county and we expect to see it progress by leaps and bounds under the leadership of Mr. Brown, as it has in the past under the management of his predecessor.

turers wanted a change and they would welcome a plan that would permit them to purchase their tobacco when they wanted it and the amount of each grade they want when they want it.

He told of the bankers of Kentucky giving their approval, first in group meetings and then in general convention at Louisville, without one dissenting voice. He said the financing of the movement would be the easiest part of the work, that the federal reserve system would back up the bankers in lending money on the tobacco crop if the co-operative marketing movements is adopted. He said the tobacco men would figure with the bankers, just as the California co-operatives figured with the bankers, and that the bankers would have a better collateral than he ever loaned money on to back his loans. He told of the action of the War Finance Corporation in backing with $25,000,000 the cotton producers, who have been in practically the same situation.

Market Stable In England

Judge Bingham said that if the plan was "good enough for the banks, the federal reserve system, and the United States government, isn't it good enough for the tobacco growers of Garrard County?

He told how, with the aid of the co-operative marketing system, the French farmers had performed the almost miraculous feat of restoring fertility "the most terribly and completely destroyed country in the history of the world."

Judge Bingham told of the stability of the market in England for dairy products of Denmark, after 50 years of co-operative selling and that no Dane would think of selling and no Englishman of buying in any other way. He said that what had been done successfully in France and Denmark could be successfully done in Kentucky. What had been done in the matter of signing up the growers of Fayette and Woodford and Bourbon could be done in Garrard.

He went into the provisions of the contract, saying that it was the product of the best legal minds in America and that under it every pound of tobacco contracted would be delivered, the growers could depend on that. "The plan is sound, feasible, practicable, workable, the most humane and patriotic the best from a financial standpoint," he said, "that we have ever considered."

WILL DECIDE ROUTE Directors And Officers To Go Over Route Today.

A meeting of the directors and officers of the Cincinnati-Lookout Mountain Air Line Division of the Dixie Highway, have called a meeting at Nicholasville today to go over the routes from Nicholasville to Stanford through Lancaster and the route through Danville and Harrodsburg from Stanford to Nicholasville. After the routes have been gone over a meeting will be held at Nicholasville this afternoon and the route definitely settled before anything is taken before the Dixie Highway Commission at Cincinnati tomorrow. The delegation will be entertained a few minutes in Lancaster this morning and will be served a luncheon on Halls Gap beyond Stanford, as guests of Lancaster and Nicholasville.

CORPULENT COOK Nearly Drowns In Cesspool.

No little excitement was experienced in the city yesterday morning, when it was heard from the jail, by loud screaming and yelling, that "Aunt" Belle Dunlap, the corpulent cook, of jailer Ross and about the size of "Aunt Eppie Hogg, the largest woman in seven counties," had fallen into the cesspool in the rear of the county jail. In the excitement someone said, "fire" and in a few minutes the fire bells were ringing and people were flocking to the public square from every street in the city. "Aunt" Belle had stepped upon the cement cover that closed the pool, and her 350 pounds proved too much for it, and through it she fell into the ten foot foul receptacle. Ladders and ropes were lowered and after much effort she was brought to the surface and soon revived after her hazardous and unfortunate experience.

Delightful Dance

The Lancaster Hop Club gave another delightful dance at the tobacco warehouse last Tuesday night that was pronounced by all as the best ever attempted by our local boys. Many from a distance were on hand and enjoyed the hospitality of their local friends to the limit.

Baptist Church Notes

The ladies of the Baptist church have recently organized a Home Department and desire the prayers of the good people for its success.

The work is progressing fine, a large box of clothing etc. having been sent to the Glendale Orphan home.

The following are the officers: Mrs. I. W. Manley, President; Mrs. Charlie Moore, vice president; Mrs. Wearren, secretary and Mrs. Bogie, Treasurer.

Dunn.

James Henry Dunn, 54 years old, a farmer, died at his home, 3 1/2 miles from Lexington on the Todd's road, yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock after an illness of several months. Mr. Dunn moved to Fayette county from near Lancaster about three years ago. Besides his widow, Mrs. Dunn is survived by two sisters, Mrs. George Aldridge, and Mrs. Mary Bishop, both of Garrard county. Complete funeral arrangements will be announced later—Lexington Herald.

The remains were brought to Lancaster last Saturday afternoon the interment taking place in the local cemetery.

Loses Another Barn.

Lightning and fire destroyed another large tobacco barn for J. I. Hamilton Monday afternoon, making four that he has lost within as many years. Unfortunately he had no insurance on any of them. The one lost Monday contained all of his farming implements, fifty acres of baled hay and quite a lot of tobacco. His loss is several thousand dollars.

If people would just insure with GAINES, pay a small premium and when you have a loss, get your pay in a very few days, think what would have been saved to the farmers of Garrard County. It's the "best investment" one can make. (It.)

LANCASTER BOYS Destroys Two Stills And 1,500 Gallons Of Beer.

Joe Kavanaugh and William Kinnaird are making the way of the moonshiner a rough and rocky road, according to reports of a recent raid, says the Lexington Herald.

Destruction of two copper moonshine stills totaling 90-gallons capacity, 1,500 gallons of still beer with fermenters, thirty gallons of "singlings" and five gallons of whiskey and the arrest of one man charged with operating one of the stills was reported to the office of Prohibition Director Sam Collins Saturday by Dry Agents, J. M. Kavanaugh and W. H. Kinnaird.

A fifty-gallon still and most of the equipment was raided and destroyed by the two agents and Deputy U. S. Marshal Workman, near Burdick, Taylor county. G. L. Rucker, in whose smokehouse five gallons of moonshine whiskey was found, was arrested and held to the Federal grand jury by U. S. Commissioner Haldrick at Lebanon. The other still was raided three miles from Columbia by Sheriff Sanders and deputies of Adair county. No arrests were made in connection with the raid.

GOOD MILK For Lancaster Children

Miss Westover tells the Record that the milk offered for sale in Lancaster, is being tested at the Public Service laboratory in Lexington. The state requirements have been met by several dairies. There is some lack of cooling facilities, making it almost impossible to prevent the rapid development of bacteria, but as 100,000 are considered safe for human consumption, many have been able to keep within this limit. One producer showing only 1,000.

As only the best of cows are kept for the family's use, the butter fat has been exceptionally high. The following are those who are dispensing milk free from manure contamination: N. Miller, A. W. Kavanaugh, V. A. Lear, R. K. Spoke, Frank Thompson, Jess W. Sanders, and S. G. Haselden. As soon as all milk offered for sale is tested, private dairies will be done on request.

Crowd Greet Biederwolf

Probably 500 people greeted Rev. Biederwolf and party in this city last Saturday afternoon. About twelve cars loaded with people drove into the city about 3:30. A temporary platform was arranged for the speaker, who delighted his audience for about fifteen minutes. Prof. Rollings led the singing. Dr. Biederwolf is holding a great meeting at Danville and many from adjoining counties are attending. Many from Lancaster will attend this evening and space will be reserved for all Lancaster people.

Brown.

Mrs. James Royston received a message Wednesday stating the death of her half-brother, Mr. Arthur D. Brown, which occurred Sept. 5th, at the home of his son, in Des Moines, Iowa. The third stroke of paralysis was the cause of his death. His wife preceded him to the grave several months ago and was buried in Los Angeles, California. He was a devoted father and a honest and upright man and many Lancaster friends were sorry to know of his death. He was well known here, having made his home in Lancaster many years. He was the father of nine children but seven live to mourn his loss.

Foot Ball Practice.

The boys of the Lancaster High School turned out last Monday afternoon for a hard workout for the ensuing year. Capt. "Battle" Cox is working for his men with the view of making this one of the banner years for old L. H. S. Coach McRoberts stated that several games have already been scheduled and the local lads are determined that they will win each game this season, notwithstanding that they go up against some of the strongest teams in the State.

Uniforms to the extent of $150.00 have been ordered and will be here in time for the first game.

CIRCUIT COURT CLOSES Many Cases Disposed Of And Docket Nearly Cleared

The August term of the Garrard Circuit Court was brought to a close last Saturday morning. During the two weeks session many cases on the docket were disposed of, either by dismissal or compromise. The grand jury returned seven more indictments, making a total for the session of thirty-six, most of them for misdemeanors.

George Leisure, charged with moonshining was given a fine of $100 and three months in jail. The cases of William and Walter Leisure, charged with the same offense were dismissed for lack of evidence. James Tackett, attempted rape, was given 15 years in penitentiary; Elmer Denny, who burglarized the store of Ledford and Ramsey at Manse, was given eight years.

Lancaster All Stars Defeat Paint Lick.

The Record stated in last week's issue that the best game of the season would be played in Lancaster on the following Friday and we dare say that we were right in our prediction as the immense crowd, the largest that has witnessed any game of the season, said that it was by far the very best game of the season.

Lancaster and Garrard county people are loud in their praise of Mrs. Jno. Tatem and W. B. Roop of the Paint Lick nine and Mgr. Joseph of the local nine as they both spaced neither time nor money in giving to the fans a real base ball game.

This was more like one great big family with each son trying hard to win the contest, however, the Lancaster All Stars were the luckiest and won the game over the Paint Lick delegation by the score of 7 to 5. The East enders drove in Lancaster like a small size army and brought with them the determination to carry the prize back to their hustling little city and the first inning looked as if they were but King on the mound, said that he wanted to encourage them and give them a run for money. Capt. Lackey of the local team gave out a statement to lose all the other games but win this one by all means.

Wright, who is known as the man with the "steel arm" suffered a hard loss and went down in defeat at the hands of the All Stars and the clever pitcher for Lancaster tied another blue to his long list of victories.

Capt. Lackey behind the bat with Lefty Whitnell on first. Woods on second, Miller on short and Walker on third looked after the interest of the inner field work at all times while the three fielders allowed nothing to touch the ground. They were Embury, Jenkins and Rohan.

We congratulate most heartily the two teams for the expense and the time that they put to this contest.

Lancaster Wins Another Labor Day

Mrs. Joseph and his cast of All Stars invaded the camps of Somerset last Monday and took the Mountaineers into camp by the score of 5 to 4. The All Stars showed the briar jumpers how to play ball and easily won the contest over the many raw decisions handed them by the ball fans of that city.

Rohan and Frank were on the mound for the locals and their twirling was much admired by the small band of rooters that accompanied Capt. Lackey's team to the Mountaineers.

Football Season.

The football season will open in Lancaster Friday, September 23rd, when Lancaster will play Junction City. This ought to be a good game as Junction City had a dandy team last year, and we all know what Lancaster had and what she will have this year. Let's boost her.

SPLENDID OPENING Lancaster Graded And High Schools Have Auspicious Start.

Under the most auspicious circumstances, the Lancaster Graded and High School opened its doors to the pupils and public last Monday morning for its fall term. Prof. Paul Boyd with his able corp of assistants were all on hand and eager to start in the nine months' term that lies before them. The auditorium was packed and jammed with pupils and visitors, the latter coming to show the interest in the splendid school which is progressing so rapidly under the leadership of Prof. Boyd.

Dr. H. S. Hudson offered a short and impressive prayer and a splendid talk to the children was made by John E. Stormes, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

The enrollment was decidedly the largest in the history of the school, numbering 425 on the opening day. It is quite a serious problem with the trustees as to where all of these children and how all of them can be comfortably located. A Kindergarten class has been added this year and quite a number have enrolled for this department. The high school department is the largest ever known there. All that were promoted last year and many more in addition, being in this department.

The kindergarten department will not open until about October 1st., at which time all former primer students will be admitted, as this department takes the place of the primer grade which has been dropped from grades.

Four new teachers are with the school this year, they being: Miss Ellen Sanders, of Campbellsville, who teaches the 10th. grade; Miss Griffith, Paris, 5th. grade; Miss Lucetta Skinner, 7th. grade and Miss Mary Wilder, Hustonville, who will have charge of the kindergarten and the public school music.

Teachers' Examination

The last examination for teachers this year will be held at the Court House on September 16th and 17th. Miss Jennie Higgins, Co. Supt.

Good Work.

The City Council is to be congratulated upon the work done in front of the post office under the supervision of Chief Bratton. It is quite an improvement to motorists and will prove a great saving to the street which was fast wearing away.

Some Tomato Plant.

When a man tells us he has a tomato plant 12 feet and one inch tall and still growing, we might be just a little sceptical, but when Billie Raney told us he was the owner of such a vine, we were not a doubting Thomas. Can anyone beat it.

Sams-Barker

Miss Margaret Sams, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Sams, who live near Mt. Hebron, was married yesterday afternoon in this city, to Mr. W. Lee Barker, 19 years old and son of R. L. Barker, also of that neighborhood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. W. Manley, immediately after which, the happy couple drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a hearty welcome awaited them.

Sells Farm Well.

Capt. W. T. King tells us he had a splendid sale last Saturday, when he disposed at public auction, the 75 acre farm of the late S. W. Wylie, in Madison county for $70 an acre. This farm was offered for less than this money a year ago and of course the seller is well satisfied. He also tells us that everybody up in that neck of the woods are enthusiastic for the tobacco pool and are signing almost to a man.

Webster Farmers Plan Cooperative Shipping

Plans have been started by the Webster County farmers for the organization of a cooperative livestock shipping association, according to D. G. Carl, extension specialist in marketing from the College of Agriculture who is cooperating with those interested in perfecting the project. A committee has already been appointed to go over suggestions for a constitution and by-laws and it is expected that the association will be permanently formed in the near future. Officers at the present are D. C. Luck, president, and Hume Mahurin, secretary. The association will probably have headquarters at Onton.

HANNIBAL'S POPLAR

Marking Site Of Gruesome Tragedy Is Hewn Down

(By Clay Sutton In Louisville Post)

Lancaster, Ky., Aug. 25.—For more than a hundred years an immense historic tree, measuring eight feet in diameter at the base, and ninety feet to the first limb, known as Hannibal's poplar, has appeared its huge form on an undulating plateau two miles east of this city. Yesterday this aged monarch, the surviving king of a mighty forest which long since disappeared, was attacked in concert by a crew of lumberjacks armed with axes and saws, and it crashed to earth with a deafening roar.

For generations the local citizens had cherished for those leviathan a sentiment akin to reverence, since it expressed to them a magnificent legacy of nature preserved and transmitted from a distant and gloomy past.

Site of Duel and Murder.

Defying alike the hurricane and the thunderbolt, Hannibal's poplar stood for more than a century in stately majesty on this tragic plain, for here the Kemper-Thompson duel was fought in 1826; and here also, only a few paces away under a crumbling slab, lies the mouldering dust of Polly Brown, a woman possessing the slumbering instincts of a Lucretia Borgia, and who incited by fiendish jealousy, murdered her own sister at this spot in 1832. In point of cold and deadly cruelty this monstrous crime which gave rise to a train of other terrors, undoubtedly has but few parallels in the criminal annals of this section.

These two sisters, almost exactly opposites as to type as well as temperamentally, were daughters of George Brown, a wealthy slave owner of the neighborhood; and it was through a sinister trick of destiny that both should become enamored of the same man, a young physician named Pawling, a resident of this city, which at that time was only a straggling village.

Dr. Pawling had at first paid some attention to Polly, but he was no sooner enlightened as to her dark and cunning nature than he ignored her almost completely for the more charming companionship of her sister Fannie, a rollicking blond of 19 and younger than the former by at least five years. Fannie was a prepossessing girl with deep-blue eyes and regular features, a voice subdued and musical, and she possessed a wealth of golden hair which crowned with splendor a brow of singular whiteness.

Under the impetuous attentions of the young physician the flower of love slowly unfolded in the bosom of this charming girl, and they became engaged. The date of the wedding was set two months in the future. But such happiness was never to be, for the enraged and discarded woman, secretive, cold and crafty, and in whose sunless and brooding soul a certain cruelty was apparent from childhood, saw with emotions of a savage, vengeful jealousy the sudden eclipse of her own matrimonial dreams, and she thereupon conceived the resolution of taking her sister's life in order to prevent the approaching marriage.

Prepared Hatchet for Ghastly Deed.

Preparatory to executing this frightful purpose she secured a hatchet, which she carefully sharpened and concealed on her person, and soon afterwards decoyed her unsuspecting sister to take a walk with her into a neighboring forest.

Proceeding to the wood, they entered the dense shadows of a paw-paw thicket, and at length sat down together on a log near Hannibal's poplar. Here Polly plucked a wild flower, and under the pretense of decking her sister's hair with it, she slowly twined her sinewy fingers into Fannie's golden locks, thus completing a deadly ambush. She abruptly ceased to speak. Slowly her hand closed as with a grasp of steel, causing the frightened girl to cry out in pain as she clapped both hands to her head, but too late, for Polly, ferocious and terrible, leaped to her feet almost at the same instant with a hatchet flashing in her right hand, and snatched Fannie backward by the hair upon the log. The poor girl uttered terrible screams as her white throat was bared to an uplifted blade which the next instant was buried to the hilt in her neck, severing the spinal column at the base of the brain. A torrent of blood spurted over her dress. The wailing form received another savage blow beneath the right ear, and then it slid off the log to the ground, where it moved convulsively for a moment and then lay still.

Covered Body With Leaves

The murderers crouched there as if petrified, glaring fixedly at the corpse. Suddenly noticing some dark-red stains on her hands, Polly Brown glanced fearfully in all directions. Not a soul had seen the enactment of this horror. Her movements at once became hurried, for she wished to destroy the evidence of the crime, a thing she attempted to do by heaping leaves and brush on the body. This done, she washed her hands at the brook and stole out of the thicket by a circuitous route.

Negroes Die For Crime.

Two negro slaves of George Brown, who were working in a nearby field, had heard screams, but no one had seen the girls leave the house together or Polly return alone.

The mystery surrounding Fannie's prolonged absence alarmed the community. Searching parties were soon scouring the countryside, and it was a member of one of these, a man named Claiborne Lear, who found the dead girl on the following day, his attention having been attracted by noisy clamor of some crows that were hovering about the fatal spot.

The two negroes, who admitted having heard screams, were seized and held as suspects; and they were still further entangled in the fatal web by certain false accusations made by Polly herself as to their movements on the day of the murder. In a few days they were tried before a jury and condemned to death on testimony which was vague and circumstantial on the one hand, and on the other composed entirely of a tissue of falsehoods. They went to the gallows shrieking their innocence to the last. Thus the law, which always exacts a sacrifice for crimes of violence, was appeased.

Haunted by Hallucinations.

The sequel must be sketched in mournful lines, for remorse, which is a pitiless and unerring accuser in deeds of violence and blood, bit like acid on the ugly soul of Polly Brown. Lashed and dismayed by the stern terrors of her secret, she confessed to her sister's murder. Meanwhile her health failed. Her manner also became erratic and strange, certain hallucinations foreshadowing a mental derangement, this probability being still further indicated by insomnia and terrifying outbursts of nocturnal screaming, the family often finding her in a corner of her bedroom haggard, abject, shuddering with wild despair, eyes fixed on some frightful illusion. It was evident that a disturbing phantom now stalked unceasingly on the dismal horizon of this blasted mind. In a few weeks an unseen finger touched the mortal coil of the wretched woman, who was now reduced to a gibbering skeleton, and her liberated soul plunged into the shadowy realms. And today, on the gloomy, windswept plain, where lies her mouldering dust, only a rough crumbling stone, moss-covered and aslant in a mass of nettles and trailing vines, marks her final resting place.

TOBACCO DISEASES

Spread Following Rain And Wind

Tobacco diseases which have caused little trouble in Kentucky this year up to the present time are not apt to prove serious unless a combination of windy and rainy weather prevails to cause them to spread, according to W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Should this condition occur growers should guard against any possible spreading of angular leaf spot and wildfire by cutting out all badly diseased acres in their fields. These two diseases have been less prevalent this year than during last year, Mr. Valleau said. Favorable weather conditions which have controlled their spreading up to the present time have been responsible for the small amount of damage caused by them.

"I HAVE LOST THE RECEIPT"

Thus spoke the man who was asked to settle a bill that he claimed to have paid a month previously. He had placed the receipt in his pocket with other papers and now could not find it.

He had paid cash, so could do nothing except pay the bill a second time.

That man learned a lesson from this incident—he now pays all his bills by check. In case of dispute about a paid bill, he can now use his cancelled checks as proof of payment.

Do you pay by check? It is the safe and businesslike way!

The Moving Picture Holdup

By MURIEL BLAIR.

© 1921 Western Newspaper Union
The journey across the desert is not a distracting one, and any diversion is gladly welcomed, so that, when the flashily dressed man stood up at the end of the Pullman and he can address the passengers, everybody went forward and gathered around him, laughing and clapping. They thought he was about to offer something for sale.

"Ladies and gentlemen," began the flashily dressed man, "I am going to repeat to you what I have just said to the passengers in the next room. When we reach Bad Water, in ten minutes or so a moving picture show will be shown on the platform. I am of you, these passengers, to come, and if one or two of the ladies will please to come to the platform along."

Everybody began laughing and eagerly examined the stage at Bad Water. This was the fourth day of the transcontinental journey, and the passengers were on very good terms with one another. They began to discuss train robberies.

"I'll never give up a cent," exclaimed a stout, perspiring drummer, wiping the sweat from his forehead.

"Well, as for me, I know I should just faint," answered a demure young lady. "And before I faint, I'll just hand over everything I had."

"Not with me around, you wouldn't need to," answered the drummer gallantly.

The other travelers did not commit themselves, for at that moment the train began to slow down and there appeared the irrigation ditch from which the station took its name. Then the little tin-roofed shanty came into view, and a moment later a half dozen men, wearing sombreros and masked, with pistols stuck all around their waists, leaped forward across the tracks. One jumped into the engine cab and held his pistol to the forehead of the engineer. The mail van was next attacked, while two men made their way into the foremost of the coaches.

Upon the platform a moving picture operator had set up his instrument and was busily reeling off the film, the passengers, interested in the scene, gathered around him.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," interposed the flashily dressed man in tones of remonstrance. "Won't you please go back into the coaches and be seated? You're interfering with the operator. It spoils the reality of the pictures, your standing around here as though nothing had happened. People will think the picture's a fake and it's going to be exhibited in all the leading cities of America. Won't you go back?"

Two or three did turn back toward the coaches in a half-hearted way, but the rest remained obdurate. A pistol shot rang out, followed by a woman's scream for help.

"You told me it was fun," shrieked a woman's voice. "I won't give you my rings. I won't, I tell you. There, take them, then. And that's every penny I have in the world."

"It's Big Ike and his gang," somebody screamed. "It's real enough! My God, it's all real!"

Then the flashily dressed man came leaping out of his coach, a smoking pistol in his hand. He was followed by two of the gang.

"Hands up, you silly sheep," he yelled. "Hands up or I fire. Now, then, back into the cars. One at a time, please. You'll keep them above your heads while the goes through you."

Sheep, he had called them, and like sheep they obeyed. The first to do so was the commercial traveler. There was a look of terror on his red face, and he held his arms erect as ramrods.

Only one traveler remained upon the platform. It was the demure young lady who had been discussing her course of action in the event of a real hold-up. Instead of fainting she stamped her foot violently and actually shook her fist in the flashily dressed man's face.

"I won't put my hands up and I won't give you a cent. And I've got ninety dollars inside my waist and I defy you to take it, you coward. There!"

Upon the platform the operator was still grinding off his film. The flashily dressed man approached the young lady, took off his hat, and made her a bow.

"Maiden, you are the only man among the lot," he said. "Pray keep your money as a tribute to your courage!"

The passengers had all fled in when the wheels of the train began to move. The flashily dressed man stood on the step and leered at them.

"Sorry to frighten you all, ladies and gents," he said. "If you'd obliged me as I asked of you to do, I wouldn't have had to scare you. We ain't bandits; we're just moving picture people; but we had to get the picture and as you wouldn't help us—why, we just had to help ourselves. Good-bye."

When they had resumed their places there was quite a long silence. Then the drummer spoke.

"I know it wasn't real," he said. "If I'd thought it was I'd have acted different."

He smiled at the demure young lady. But she was reading a textbook on the Montessori method of teaching the young, and she never looked up at him toward Bad Water and San Francisco.

COLD WINTER IS PREDICTED

Weather Prognosticator Says That It Will Be Severest Since 1888-89

Colonel Asa E. Martin, widely known weather prognosticator of Central Kentucky, this week made the prediction that the coming winter in Kentucky would be one of the severest since the cold winter of 1888-89. He says in his prognostication that there will be twenty-nine snows, the first falling on October 13 and the last on May 2, 1922. During the winter he says there will be seventeen zero days and three ice spells, when ice from three to twelve inches thick will be harvested. He also makes provisions for three deep storms. The last frost in this latitude he says is due to arrive on September 10th. Colonel Martin says the severe winter ahead will cause much suffering throughout the country and he warns the public to "take time by the fore-top" and prepare in advance for it. Colonel Martin has been a weather prognosticator for fifty years and those who have kept up with his predictions say that his forecasts have "hit the spot" oftener than they have missed.—Lexington Leader.

CARUSO DREADED DEATH

So Says Rosina Galli, Denseuse, Returned From Italy.

(New York American.)

"Caruso did not want to die. He believed it was the Supreme Will that he should continue to sing. He was broken-hearted and cried like a child when he became aware death was at hand."

Rosina Galli, premiere dancer of the Metropolitan, said this on her arrival from Italy recently on the President Wilson. Mme. Galli joined Mrs. Caruso immediately after the death of the tenor, and remained with her and the baby, Gloria, until after the funeral. Mme. Galli continued:

"Caruso wanted so much to get well. On his deathbed he called to his wife, 'Don't you think I will recover?' He was quiet then and did not know he was going to die. A little later he felt terrible pains in his chest. He must have suffered awful agony."

"Again he called to Mrs. Caruso, in an agonizing voice, 'I am going to die.' She tried to comfort him, saying the pain would soon pass and that he would be better. But it was not so. His eyes closed, his moaning ceased. He was dead."

"Only a few days before his death he was singing. He sang 'Marta' all the way through, and asked everybody, 'How is my voice?' Everybody thought it was wonderful, better than ever. Caruso was confident of that. That was his mistake. He did not pay attention to his lungs, which had become affected. He had not the power there."

SUMMER CARE OF ICE CHEST IS IMPORTANT

Well-Made Box Requires Less Ice Than Poor One.

Drainage Pipe Should Be Cleaned by Flushing With Hot Water, and Keep Ice Compartment Well Filled at All Times.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Choose a well-made ice chest; it uses less ice than one of poor construction. It should keep a temperature of 30 degrees Fahrenheit, or less, say specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. Test yours with a thermometer.

Keep the ice chest clean; wipe up anything spilled in it and, when necessary, wash it out with hot water using two tablespoonfuls of washing soda to each gallon of water; rinse and dry thoroughly. Keep the drain pipe clean by flushing with hot water and cleaning with a long-handled brush. Such cleanliness does not prevent ice from melting; it does save food from spoiling.

Keep the ice compartment well filled. This is economy in the long run. Do not cover the ice with ice blankets, newspapers, or cloth. These prevent the ice melting but make the ice chest less cool. Do not keep food in the ice compartment, as the melting of the ice is increased every time the door is opened. Do not open the ice chest doors unnecessarily. When one is opened, cold air rushes out and warm air rushes in. See that doors are closed tight after use, not left ajar.

Select fairly thin dishes for ice-chest storage. Thick dishes take up and hold heat. Enamelled ware and ordinary glass are better than heavy earthenware. Never put warm food or warm dishes into the ice box. Drink drinking water and such foods as butter, radishes, and olives by letting them stand in the ice chest rather than by serving them with clapped ice.

GRAPE JUICE IS REFRESHING

Excellent for Use in Hot Weather and as Base for Desserts It Cannot Be Excelled.

Much grape juice is canned at home nowadays, for it makes one of the most refreshing drinks in hot weather, and as a base for desserts it cannot be excelled. The following dessert recipes, using unfermented grape juice, have been suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Grape Sherbet.

Mix one pint of grape juice, the juice of one lemon, and one heaping teaspoonful of gelatin dissolved in boiling water; freeze quickly; add the beaten egg white of one egg when almost frozen. This quantity is sufficient for eight persons.

Grape Ice Cream.

Mix one quart of grape juice, one quart of cream, one pound of sugar and the juice of one lemon. Freeze.

Syllabus.

Mix one quart of fresh cream, the whites of four eggs, one glass of grape juice, and two cupfuls of powdered sugar. Whip half the sugar with the cream, the balance with the eggs; mix well; add the grape juice; pour over sweetened strawberries and pineapple or oranges and bananas. Serve cold.

Behemian Cream.

Mix one pint of thick cream and one pint of grape-juice jelly; pour into small cups and set on ice. Serve with lady fingers.

PORCH BOX TO SHIELD MILK

Two Galvanized-Iron Cases With Layer of Insulating Material Is Satisfactory.

If the day's supply of milk is delivered very early in the morning, so that it stands on the porch for several hours before the family arises, a porch box should be provided. A covered box consisting of two galvanized-iron cases with a layer of insulating material is a good way to protect the milk from sun, flies, prowling animals, and dust blown from the street.

Half the mousetrap with sunflower seed.

Add a little sweet cream to caramel filling and it will not sugar.

When unking apple pie roll a few gratings of cheese into the crust.

An omelet made with six eggs will serve from six to eight persons.

Barley well cooked and served with sugar and cream makes a good cereal dish.

Dates are delicious stoned and filled with almond fudge while still soft.

When food has cooked over on stove, rub rough places with sand paper.

Try tomatoes cored and baked with a pork sausage inserted in each tomato.

Announcement

September 2nd, 1921.

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, makes the following announcement:

"We are making another reduction in the prices of Ford cars and the Ford truck, effective today. The new prices average $70.00 under former prices, and are the lowest at which Ford cars and trucks have ever been sold. List prices, F. O. B. Detroit are now as follows:

	New Price	Old Price	Reduction
Chassis	$295.	$345.	$ 50.
Runabout	325.	370.	45.
Touring Car	355.	415.	60.
Truck	445.	495.	50.
Coupe	595.	695.	100.
Sedan	660.	760.	100.

"This is the third price cut during the past twelve months. On September 22, 1920, the price of the Ford touring car was reduced from $675 to $440; June 7th, to $415, and now to $355, making total reductions in this type of $220, or 38 per cent. The same proportionate reductions have been made in all other types. One year ago the price of the Ford sedan was $975; today it lists at $660 with the same equipment.

"We are taking advantage of every known economy in the manufacture of sible price, and by doing that, we feel the them to the public at the lowest possible products in order that we may give the one big thing that will help this country into more prosperous times. People are interested in prices and are buying when prices are right.

"The production of Ford cars and trucks for August again broke all previous high records with the total reaching 117,696. This is the fourth consecutive month in which our output has gone over the hundred thousand mark, the total for the four months being 463,974, which has gone a long way in making possible the present reductions. June this year, with an output of 117,247 was the previous record month.

"One noteworthy feature of our sales is the increased demand for Ford trucks and cars for salesmen. This class of commercial business has been gradually increasing the past sixty days and we interpret it as a very good sign of improvement in general business.

"No reduction has been made in the price of the Fordson tractor, and none is contemplated."

Go over these new prices! See how little it costs to become the owner of a Ford car or a Ford truck. Can you really afford to do without one any longer?

Let us tell you more about it, and advise you regarding the delivery of the particular type of car in which you are interested.

Vehicles Captured By Dry Officials To Go Same Route.

Washington.—Immediate disposal of liquors seized under the national prohibition act, on which storage charges are accruing was ordered by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

Instructions were sent to Federal prohibition directors and internal revenue collectors to request the U. S. attorneys in their districts to petition the courts for disposition orders for all seized liquors, automobiles, boats or other vehicles taken by the government for violators of the prohibition laws.

Liquor such as "moonshine," adulterated and low proof liquor, having no commercial value, should be destroyed, Mr. Haynes said, while the higher proof and unadulterated liquor should be diverted to commercial, but not beverage uses.

Incomplete reports from the various districts, Mr. Haynes said, estimate the total value of good liquors held by the government at about $1,000,000.

RECALLS IDIOSYNCRASIES Of Kentucky Genius.

FORMER LANCASTER MAN AND WELL REMEMBERED.

(Louisville Times)

Writing to the Albany New Era, Mrs. S. A. Davidson of Chanute, Tenn., a relative of the late Spencer Dahney, one of the most pronounced characters this State ever knew, recalls something of his oddities and his early life in Albany, where Dahney, a saddle-maker, formerly had his shop. Spencer Dahney was a striking figure, a splendid appearing man and of remarkably distinguished looks when his six feet of stature were attired in his best clothes. Mrs. Davidson writes:

The way he got to be a lawyer is a good story. He was one night playing poker with Judge Fount Fox, Mike Owsley, Sam Roles and John Sandridge at Russell Springs. For a joke Owsley told Fox that Dahney, then a very young man, was there to be examined touching his learning in the profession of Coke and Blackstone. Fox answered: "Dahney, you look like a lawyer and I'll be hanged if I don't make you a lawyer," which he did on the spot.

Spencer moved to Lebanon, where Practor Knott subsequently lived, and opened a law office. The boys elected him justice of the Peace and his library was the Revised Statutes, the Code of Practice of Kentucky and the Farmers' Almanac. It was asserted that his court was noted for a maximum of dignity and a minimum of learning. He got into politics and was a candidate for State Senator. Unfortunately the presiding officer of the convention put the vote this way: "All in favor of the nomination of Colored Dahney will rise." That beat him though in a majority, not a Dahney delegate could stand on his pins.

I don't recall a more dashing looking man than Spencer Dahney at his best. He would have attracted attention, commanded admiration in any society. One Fourth of July the orator of the occasion was absent, and Spencer was called on to fill his place and make a Democratic stump speech and he did it capably. The audience was spellbound and hung on his words. His periods were fervid and burning, and after two hours of enormous eloquence he closed in a very rhapsody of patriotic declamation. Coming down from the stand Spencer met one of his maternal uncles, who was pretty nearly as much of a wag as Spencer himself.

The old man said: "Spencer I'm proud of you. Your eloquence was splendid, your presence superb, your voice rich, resonant and musical, your gestures were grace itself, but Spencer, what you lack, is ideas. If a idea ever strikes you, I'm damned if you won't be a rouser."

Rye Sown On Bare Fields Would Make More Pasture.

Despite the fact that the normal area of pasture in Kentucky is nearly 5,000,000 acres much livestock is compelled to exist on scant rations because of poor pasture soils and periodical dry spells, according to soils specialists. This condition could be remedied for a period of several weeks during the fall and early spring and the pasture acreage increased by at least 3,000,000 acres by seeding rye in the corn and tobacco fields of the State, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils field agent of the College of Agriculture.

Many farmers in the State are fast realizing the importance of this crop as a late fall and early spring pasture, reports from one county indicating that the rye acreage there will be doubled this fall. Pasturing in winter may be done provided the ground is not too soft. Mr. Stephenson said: A Todd County farmer has reported that the increased milk production which he obtained by placing his cows on rye pasture was highly profitable. Aside from its value for pasturing a rye cover crop on corn and tobacco fields affords the soil protection from erosion and the leaching away of fertility during the winter.

HOORAY!

The Red Wagons Are Coming

Hugo Bros., Great Consolidated Shows Will Exhibit in Lancaster Wednesday, Sept. 14th.

This announcement is hailed with delight by the juvenile element, while some of the "older boys" are already looking about for their stray nephews and nieces. They are saying, they will probably have to go and carry the children to see the animals. But deep down in their hearts they know they would not miss the big show if there were not a small boy within a thousand miles of Lancaster.

On Show Day.

Many new and novel features will be seen in this year's program of the Great Hugo Bros. Show. Foremost among these will be the Flying Jordans, daring and intrepid aerialists; the Silverton Trio, dancers on a lofty double wire; the Alpine Sisters, dainty and marvelous equilibristas; the peerless Potters, gymnasts; the Nelson family acrobats and two-score educated Shetland ponies, monkeys and dogs. The clown congress is a large one and is headed by Arthur Berry, Andy Rice, Sam Lewis and Valdo. In the menagerie will be seen Tom Tom, the largest elephant in captivity. The big show travels abroad its own special train of railroad cars.

There will be two performances, at 2 and 8 p. m., the doors opening an hour earlier to permit a concert of popular and operatic music by Prof. Fred Melvin and his military band. A series of free exhibitions will be given on the show grounds at 1 and 7 p. m., in addition to a band concert on the downtown streets at noon. The town and surrounding country is heavily billed for the appearance of the big show and local merchants anticipate the largest crowd on show day, in years.

Gas And Subs.

The disarmament conference to be held in Washington in November may result in the limitation of armaments and the reduction of standing armies. If it accomplishes no more than these two things it will justify its existence.

But for the sake of humanity it should do more. It should put an end to submarine and gas warfare.

The whole world knows the horrors of submarine warfare—how even helpless women and children have fallen victims to the horns of the deep. Civilization has been set back a hundred years by their use.

The man who shoots another in the back without warning is called a coward. The submarine is no better. It strikes in the dark and murders whole shiploads who have no means of striking back.

The use of gas is another evidence of the degeneration of mankind.

In other days savage Indians burned their prisoners at the stake. They did not burn women and children.

The use of gas in warfare comes dangerously near to being on a par with burning at the stake. Its full horrors are known only to those who have suffered its agony.

Since the close of the world war gasses have been produced that will exterminate entire armies. If we have another great war this will mean the wholesale destruction of a great proportion of the male population of the earth. It will also mean that entire cities will be depopulated—non-combatants and innocent women and children falling victims to its deadly fumes. Such attacks will come from the air. The temptation of annihilate will be too great for an enemy to withstand.

Gasses and submarines should be outlawed among the nations of the earth.

The Washington conference is an opportune time for such action.

Civilization requires it and humanity demands it.

Out of sight is not always out of mind. Sometimes the absent one forgets to pay up.

The wise man knows a foolish thing when he hears it, but he does not always recognize it when he says it.

Why Not Trade

At Home?

Many people ask that question, but very few trouble to seek the answer.

Why should people patronize their home merchants?

Because it is a great saving of time, and time today represents money.

Because the home merchant can only remain in business through the patronage of home people, and a town without merchants would be a sorry place in which to live.

Because the home merchant sells goods that do not have to be returned because of defects or inferiority of quality. It is the only way in which the local man can hold his trade.

Because the local merchant is not in the habit of charging excessive prices. You may at times be able to get the same article elsewhere for a little less money, but the quality will invariably be reduced in proportion to the price. The local merchant cannot afford to sell "cheap" stuff. His customers would not tolerate it.

Because the prosperity of a community depends upon the amount of money in circulation in the community, and that is regulated mainly by the marketing of surplus products abroad and the keeping of as much as possible of the receipts at home.

Because a community that spends most of its money abroad for supplies soon finds that it has little left for the purchase of additional supplies.

It is so simple a child could understand it, and what a child can comprehend should not go unheeded by adults.

Think it over. Thinking may accomplish much good. It certainly will do no harm.

The honesty of some people is dependent wholly upon what they cannot get away with without being caught.

As The Editor Sees It.

Has it occurred to you that there are many people today who sincerely believe that the world is coming to an end, and that the day is near at hand? The present unsettled conditions throughout the earth are to them but visible signs of the approaching dissolution. But regardless of their beliefs, and no matter what happens, the world keeps right on moving, and it will continue to move until time ceases to be. Many years ago the members of a religious sect were convinced that the end of the world was at hand. They even set the date when all would be wafted to heaven, or to hell, or wherever else they might go.

There was much excitement, many wild eyes, and no little uneasiness, or apprehension.

They dressed themselves in white, ascended high mountains or hills, raised their eyes to heaven, and awaited the summons.

They are still waiting—those who are left of them. And the world still moves.

In the early days woman was something of a chattel—a possession of mankind, to be disposed of as his fancy might decree.

Among the rich and powerful she was an ornament, a plaything. In the humbler walks of life she was a drudge, little better than a beast of burden.

If any person had told the kings and knights of old that the time would come when woman would be man's equal in all things that person would have been considered a lunatic, or a liar, or both, and a dangerous person to remain at large. His days would have been short.

Yet for centuries woman has been forging forward, fighting for and obtaining greater privileges, until today she is recognized as man's equal in many countries.

In the past doubting ones have made dire prophecies for such a day. The rise of womanhood to them meant chaos, disintegration, dissolution.

But woman still progresses, and the world still moves.

If man doesn't like it he can lag behind.

Some people profess to believe that the great war marked the beginning of the end of time, and that Christ was to return to earth in 1925 and rule for a thousand years. This belief is based upon mathematical computations applied to certain passages in the bible.

It may be true, or it may not, but if your heart is clean you need have no fear of meeting Christ in 1925.

If Christ were to sweep the rulers of the earth into the seas and seize the reins of government himself we would not be the losers thereby.

Even with Christ as the Emperor of the Earth the world would continue to move—at least for a thousand years.

And as the earth moves, so with it.

A great conference is to be held in Washington. Wise men of the earth will seek to curtail armaments, eliminate war, and make the land one of peace, happiness and plenty.

While they are talking the world will be moving. It may be moving toward better days, or it may be approaching horrors as yet even unheard of.

But still it will move, steadily, surely, without pause or deviation from its course.

God made the world for a purpose and when the purpose is accomplished the world will cease to be.

You, and I, are but little specks in this world that moves—less than a tiny grain of sand upon a mighty beach.

Great is the world, greater is God, but infinitely small are we who doubt that the world will continue to move.

Doubt not today, lest at the day of judgment ye be doubted.

A Harbinger Of Evil.

An eminent Norwegian prophesies that the United States will soon be overrun with bolsheviki and in the grip of the red terror.

Pleasant prospect!

Having failed dismally in Russia after reducing that country to ruin and starvation, it is but natural that the red hordes should seek for new fields to conquer—and there is none fairer than ours.

The danger lies not on the power of the bolsheviki, but rather in our own indifference.

It is difficult for the average American to conceive that any power under the sun could upset our established order of government.

The autocratic czar of Russia probably felt much the same—until he ceased to be either an autocrat or a czar.

The strongest of stone walls will crumble and fall if the foundations are persistently undermined.

It is so with governments, and even our own is not immune.

For six years or more we have witnessed an orgy of profeering and goading and plundering such as has never been dreamed of before.

Money lust drove an otherwise sane public mad, and it is only partially recovering today.

Laws of restriction and correction we have, but they are too often looked upon as applicable to the other fellow and not to self.

Such a condition, stretching over a long period of time, affords the bolsheviki to spread resentment and discontent, two important factors which are preliminaries to every revolution.

Instead of smiling at the learned Norwegian who warns us of impending evil we would do well to give his words serious consideration, lest the time come when it is too late to consider.

Automobile Taxation.

When certain well meaning people discuss means for augmenting the federal revenue they suggest adding another tax on automobile.

They go on the theory that if a man has money enough to own a car he can afford to pay an additional tax for the pleasure of its use, apparently giving no thought to the fact that the car owner is already paying heavily for that privilege.

When the tax assessor comes around he lists a man's automobile as a part of his property upon which taxes are paid.

He pays an annual license fee to the state and to the city in which he lives. It is true, however, that in some of the smaller towns no city license is required.

He pays an excessive price for the gas and oil which he uses, and in some states one cent a gallon of the cost of gas goes into the tax fund. This simply adds a cent to the price of gas.

There are some excellent automobile repair men, but the country is overrun with a lot of sharks who know as much about the mechanism of a car as a doctor does about shoeing a horse. The car owner does not find these birds out until they put his car on the "blink" and they have to have the work done over again. The law affords him no protection against these sharks, unless he takes the matter into court in the way of a civil suit.

If a pedestrian or a child suddenly steps in front of a moving car without warning and is injured it is always the driver who is at fault and who pays the bill. Public sentiment never concedes that it is possible for him to be in the right.

The automobile is in greater use today than the horse and buggy, and the motor vehicles are rapidly displacing the wagons in commercial use.

We hear no crying demands for placing a special tax on wagons and buggies, or horses or mules.

And yet periodically some excellent citizen arises and demands that the motorist be soaked again.

The car owner has been well plucked as it is.

He should not be pored to the bone.

Where Are

Our Brains?

Recently the government contracted with England to build a giant dirigible for our navy.

It collapsed on its trial trip and nearly fifty American and English airmen were killed.

Life paid the penalty of faulty construction.

We can understand the whys and the wherefores of faulty construction, but we cannot understand why we should have a dirigible built in England at an expense of two million dollars when it could just as well be made here at home.

This sort of thing seems especially aggravating when we think of the five or six millions of men out of employment in this country. It may be true that none of these men could build dirigibles, but the money would be kept in circulation at home, and every little helps.

Are we deteriorating in constructive ability?

Must we admit that England, with the best of her manhood under the sod, is even yet able to construct dirigibles where we cannot?

Where are our brains, anyway?

Some men are said never to know when they are whipped. But perhaps they are too good at running to get into a scrap.

Be of good cheer, brother. Knickerbockers for women will not remain knickerbockers. Next season they will be trunks.

OPPOSES CHANGE IN LAW.

Lilburn Phelps Announces That He Will Fight Move To Make an Educational Head Appointive.

Says It Would Be Political Pique.

The secretary of the Republican State Central Committee, Lilburn Phelps, Jamestown, Ky., last week announced that "I am going to fight systematically the proposed constitutional amendment," which would take the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction out of politics.

"I am issuing a statement against the amendment," Mr. Phelps said. "I have prepared a lot of literature to send to the country press throughout the State. I plan also to place my views in the hands of county officials, both Democratic and Republican, and in the hands of other county leaders of both parties."

"I am opposing this amendment as a citizen and a voter and I want that made clear," he went on. "I represent neither the Republican party nor the Republican State Central Committee, of which I am secretary. Nor do I represent any organization. I think that both sides of the question should be heard and it is probable that I shall make speeches against the amendment."

Describes His Views.

Sitting forth his views, Mr. Phelps said that "this is said to be an amendment to take the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction out of politics. It should be called an amendment to take the election of the superintendent out of the hands of the people and place it in the hands of a few politicians."

Says a "Bunch of Plums."

"If the amendment is adopted, the politicians will not overlook this bunch of plums. They will begin their work as soon as the legislature meets, and even before. If the amendment is adopted, the Superintendent of Public Instruction will be selected by the candidate for Governor, his campaign manager and probably two or three other political advisers."

Mr. Phelps added that "making an office appointive does not take it out of politics. The effort to take the office of County Superintendent of Schools out of politics by this method is a failure."

Here he reviewed the changes in the manner of selecting public officials in Kentucky. He pointed out that the Governor was chosen by a college of electors under the first Constitution of Kentucky, and that "the last victory was won in 1914, when it was provided that United States Senators should be elected by the people."

BONUS HIT BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Will Cost More Than All Pension Claims, Is Stated.

Washington.—In a new attack against payment of a cash bonus to former service men, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States estimates that it would cost more to carry out the maximum terms of the proposed cash bonus than the Government has paid out in pensions during its entire existence.

According to the National Chamber's statement, the pension bill of the United States up to June 30, 1919, amounted to approximately $5,800,000,000 while the maximum cost of the proposed bonus is placed at $6,250,000,000. This latter figure includes the estimated cost of carrying out the provisions of the bonus bill.

At the same time, the statement calls attention to the fact that nearly three-fourths of the veterans who would share in a bonus saw no fighting whatever, and nearly one-half of them were in service but six months or less before the armistice.

Copies of the statement have been sent to the President, members of the Cabinet, members of Congress, business men in every State in the Union and organizations affiliated with the National Chamber.

The statement says that the Government has already expended for former service men, injured since the armistice nearly $1,500,000, or an amount equal to the minimum cost of the proposed cash bonus.

We note, in passing, that there is less kissing among women than there was a few years ago. Not perhaps the men have no chance for complaint.

A man will talk for hours about the short comings of his neighbor, and then get as mad as a hornet if the neighbor lets out a single chirp about him.

The fight for supremacy between the pen and the sword is at an end. The sword is no longer used in battle and the pen has been supplanted by the typewriter.

Yantis-Phillips

The marriage in Lexington Sunday, of Miss Alice Yantis to Mr. A. Phillips, of Corbin, came a pleasant surprise to her friends who were entirely unaware that such serious intentions were being considered by these popular people. The marriage took place in the parlors of the Broadway Christian church, Rev. Mark Coffey officiating.

Mrs. Phillips is the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Yantis, of this county and is exceedingly popular and attractive. The groom is one of Corbin's most prominent citizens, being the assistant cashier in the Corbin National Bank. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will make their home in Corbin.

Man and wife being as one, it is not to be wondered at that so many married men love themselves.

ENJOYED

VACATION

Brother J. F. Adams And Mrs. Adams

Spend Pleasant Visit With Lancaster Friends.

Brother Jeff Adams, superintendent of the Masonic Widows' and Orphan Home, and Mrs. Adams, who spent their vacation in Lancaster, tells of his pleasant visit here in the Masonic Home Journal, in which he says:

"Mr. Adams and I looked over the country trying to select a suitable place among the many nice ones to spend our vacation. Finally, we selected the beautiful little city of Lancaster, Ky., in which to spend the much needed days of rest and recreation.

Lancaster is the County Seat of Garrard County, where the blue grass waves to the gentle breeze, and where the giant stalks of tobacco grow in profusion; where lives and breathes happy lads and ladies, sons and daughters of most noble sires; where a welcome is breathed from every breast and that pure undiluted Kentucky hospitality is shown to all who enter her portals. We could not have made a better selection.

While in Lancaster, we were greeted by big hearted Masons and their families whose grasp of love and friendship makes one feel that he has reached Home, Sweet Home. We were located in the beautiful home of Mrs. J. T. Logan, on Danville Street, where we partook of her hospitality and good things to eat for several days and we were then compelled to wend our way homeward. We will never forget the kindness of Mrs. Logan, it looked as though she had ransacked the earth to obtain for us the many good things to eat. Nor will we ever forget the many courtesies extended to us by the Brother Masons and their estimable families. We may chance to travel in foreign lands, we may some day be drifted far from these good people, but so long as life lasts, and our memory serves us, we will not nor could we, forget the splendid time spent in Lancaster, and the memory of those who were so kind to us will live green in our memory until the time shall come when we can no longer think of the many happy days and hours spent with the good people of that enterprising and beautiful town and that splendid county filled with chivalrous men, noble women and happy children."

A Birthday Home-Coming.

The beautiful home of Mrs. Mary Ann Sanders on Lexington place was a scene of happiness and joy Friday, Sept. 2nd, when a number of cars drove into the spacious grounds and surprised Mrs. Sanders with a home coming of her children and grand children, to celebrate her 67th birthday.

Mrs. Sanders, who was now to be the honored guest, was told to prepare to meet other friends and relatives who would arrive later. The sons and daughters, now busied themselves with the preparation of long tables in the yard, where the well filled baskets were relieved of their burden of good things. Suffice it to say that no delicacy that graces a birthday dinner was lacking.

At the close of the dinner while all were assembled, the following lines by Mrs. J. A. Amon were read:

A Tribute To Mother.

Mother, dear Mother, we've come home today, To celebrate your sixty-seventh birthday. Brother and sister and kinfolk and friend All bring you their greetings, rather than send In Memory's hall hang some pictures so dear, Our childhood's home, where we grew or knew fear, The hills and the trees and the creek that ran by.

We couldn't forget all these, if we'd try, We think of the schooldays made brighter by you, As you filled our lunch-baskets and bade us adieu, With always that love that prompted you to say— "Be good children and study your best today."

Another picture we cherish so dear Is the old church house by the school house so near, Where we worshiped with Father and Grandpa so long, And were taught to do right by example and song, There we made the confession, one by one, You started us right, life's race to run.

Another picture on memory's wall Is the latch-string outside and the welcome call You gave alike to stranger and friend, And dispensed hospitality and cheer without end, Oh, they were good days as we count them o'er, It seems we've lived a hundred years or more, You crowded so much into such a short time Of happiness, gladness and a love sublime, So puts off to you Mother, you've stood 'til last, In heart's full of love, declare you the best— We rank you higher than Generals or sages, Poets or bards who sing down the ages, You've made us so happy with your love and care, Here's hoping we can return a full share, Of gratitude unbounded and love fraught with deeds, That the harvest will prove you've sown; only good seeds.

—From her children.

After the reading, Miss Kate Reid with appropriate remarks presented the copy to the Mother.

The ten children and twenty-five grand children were all present. The registration of the guests showed 75 in number.

Mrs. Sanders was the recipient of some beautiful tokens of the day.

Tired business men in some of our cities are taking to ballet dancing in order to acquire that willowy appearance.

Six Pecks An Acre Is Good Wheat Seed Rate

Results obtained by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in trials to determine the best rate of seeding wheat for the State show that six pecks an acre is the most profitable amount to sow, according to E. J. Kinney, crops specialist. In some years less seed gave equally as good results as this amount but in no instance has lighter seeding given higher yields. Yields from lighter seedings have been lower in many cases, according to the results. Seeding more than six pecks has given slightly higher yields but not enough to pay for the extra seed. It has been found that the best rate of seeding varies considerably depending upon the soil, climate and other factors. The many tests conducted by the Kentucky Station also shows that the varieties used had approximately equal stooling capacities. On very rich tobacco or fallow land five pecks an acre is probably sufficient but even on such land it is best to plant six pecks. On thin land less than six pecks an acre should never be sown. The variety of wheat used may have some influence on the rate of seeding, fewer pecks being required when the grains are small than when they are the average size because of the greater number of seeds in a peck of the former. Conversely if the grains are large and plump a somewhat heavier seeding is required than where the seed is of average size.

Good Advice: Follow your own advice. Most people fall in love at sight, with the dollar. When a woman sees her own beauty others see her vanity. Confidence in the doctor is the best part of the prescription. Marriage is a lottery in which they frequently scrap over the prize. All people are not crazy who act that way. It is just the modern way of appearing smart.

Do as you would be done by and you won't "do" anybody else. The man who knows all things is not poor. He is rich in conceit. Some people are in no possible danger of being killed by over work. They never do any. Study the good points of the man you don't like. He may possess some of your own. Some people are such inveterate liars they are never believed when they tell the truth.

GOOD MIXTURES FOR SOUPS

Housekeeper Should Remember That
Only Vegetables That Absorb
Water and Cook at Equal Rates Can Be Combined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Various dried or evaporated vegetables may be used in cooking in most of the ways in which fresh materials are employed. They may find their widest usefulness, however, in soup mixtures or in the preparation of the ever popular old-fashioned vegetable boiled dinner. Trying permits the serving of any favorite vegetable combination at any and all seasons of the year.
For those who wish to make a vegetable mixture that will have the maximum food value and at the same time be as nearly as possible a complete balanced ration, the formulas used in making evaporated soup mixtures for the British armies may serve as guides. One of these mixtures contains 20 per cent each of potatoes, turnips and peas, 17 per cent each of carrots and beans, and 6 per cent of onions. In another, the combination is 32 per cent of potatoes, 10 per cent each of carrots and turnips, 10 per cent each of onions and cabbage, and 24 per cent each of beans and peas.
Offer From Prepared Product.
The dried vegetable soup mixtures on sale differ principally from those formulas in having in most instances a larger percentage of potato. In the absence of beans and peas, and in having various minor additions, such as beets, celery, radishes and tomatoes.

In making up combinations of dried vegetables, the housekeeper should remember that the mixture must subsequently be soaked and cooked as a unit, and only vegetables that absorb water and cook at approximately equal rates can be successfully combined in a dry condition. Such materials as the root vegetables, cabbage, celery, tomatoes and onions behave alike both in their absorption of water and in cooking, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Any desired combination can be made from them.

Dried corn and mature peas and beans absorb water very much more slowly and must be cooked from two to three times as long as materials in the list just given. For this reason they cannot be mixed with other vegetables before soaking. Instead, they should be separated, soaked, and partly cooked. Then the other vegetables desired in the mixture, after previous soaking, may be added and the whole cooked until done.

How to Dry Vegetables.
Practically all vegetables, after being sliced or otherwise made ready for the drier, should be blanched from one to three minutes in boiling water or steam before drying. They should then be drained and spread in a very thin layer on the shelves of the drier. From time to time the trays should be withdrawn and the contents carefully stirred so the product will dry evenly.

When thoroughly dry the product should be removed from the drier and placed in a dark dry room free from insects. Stir occasionally during the several days it is left there to cure. Then heat carefully again for a few minutes and store in tin cans, heavy pastedboard boxes, or paraffined bags. Cover tightly to exclude insects and store in a room which is warm and dry.

MEASURING CUP AND SPOONS

Devices Enable Housekeeper to Weigh Out Correct Amounts in Following New Recipe.

Cake making is not "pure luck." A half-pint measuring cup (glass or metal) for measuring the flour and sugar and a standard set of measuring spoons for measuring the butter and baking powder will help in following a new recipe, say specialists in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture.

American Legion News

The body of Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., national commander of the American Legion at the time of his accidental death at Indianapolis, Ind., in June, will not be interred in Arlington national cemetery at Washington, D. C., according to advice last week from the widow and brother of the late commander. Burial will be made at Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, O., where the body was placed in a temporary vault following the largest military funeral in America since the Civil War.

With the practical closing of the harvest season, the employment office of an American Legion post at Aberdeen, S. D., where E. W. W. tried to cause a general "stiffle" among farm hands, has closed. In three weeks the Legion served 1,917 free meals, found jobs for 617 men, gave 304 places to sleep, gave 373 free baths and 12 treatment by the post physician.

The city election in Birmingham, Ala., may be postponed at the request of an American Legion post of that city. The service men want to vote. When a law exempting them from poll tax was declared unconstitutional recently, the men were disqualified as voters. Thirty thousand world war veterans of the state are affected.

Evidence of the plight of unemployed service men was carried to cultured Boston, Mass., last week when Armand T. Gaudreau, University of Maine graduate, brought the American Legion employment bureau for any work he could do. Previously Gaudreau, dressed in his collegiate cap and gown, appeared in the streets of the banking section, selling newspapers.

RETROSPECTIVE AND PROSPECTIVE

Good Letter From Good Man.

The Record appreciates the letter which follows, received from its good old friend and former townsman, so much so that we are passing it on to our readers, believing they too will delight in reading its interesting contents, which as he terms it, is both "retrospective" and "prospective." Brother Noel has many, many warm friends in Lancaster and Garrard county who wish for him years and years of future happiness and pleasant memories.

Dear Central Record:—

"A week with my dear ones is past, but leaves many pleasant and some sad memories. On the street I met but few old familiar faces. On Sunday I spent an hour in and with the worshippers of the Baptist church. A stranger was in the pulpit—save very few all were strangers around me.

"A—I could only meditate and not hear. I breathed a pure atmosphere and a great crowd of witnesses drew near, for the past was filling my mind and heart—for he it known this church and its history, is much to me. Constituted the year I was born, 1842, some of my ancestors were constituent members. It was the church I joined. The first prayer in public was offered here. I served it as deacon for several years. It was this church which licensed me to preach the gospel. It was my first pastorate. It was and is my great prospective—God bless them.

"So the past with its cloud of witnesses was with me and the great home gathering was before me. Oh! I was happy.

"I walked with my daughter through the quiet city of the dead. We placed flowers on many graves, but soon very soon, there will be other hands to place flowers on our graves. Most of my beloved sleep there awaiting the Great Day. Happy reminiscence! It was a precious week and will keep me company for many days. You people ought to be happy. Every prospect was pleasant to the eyes—the finest crops, the fattest chickens, the best people but I must close. Run me up for another year, maybe I will live to be ninety. J. B. says I am good for the century mark, but short or long, I must have the visits of the Central Record. May its editors and family of typists, live long and prosper.

"I hope your office will send a Senator to the capitol. With best wishes to you and all the Record readers. I am. Very sincerely, R. R. Noel.

Salt and Ice.

Mixing pounded ice and salt has the effect of producing what is called a freezing mixture. The mixture has a tendency to become brine, the ice melting and the salt dissolving in the water formed. To melt, however, it must absorb heat and this is taken from bodies with which it is in contact, such as water, cream, etc. In this way ice cream can be made.

Many Do
One way to "retire" oneself in the past office is to let your correspondents' letters answer themselves—a method which has much to recommend it.

She Had Simple Fastes
A little girl, left alone with a glass of tall dandelions, discovered trying to communicate with the queen of the fairies. She was alone with the ball of one flower and looking at the other a small dandelion head, with a cross for the wrist, dimly grasping either green stalk. "Please send a cake and a big doll," she said, "to my house and a new doll and a text so I can go and spend my pennies."

Bridal Superstition
According to old belief it is an omen of good luck—a long and happy married life—for a bride to step on the altar as she passes up the aisle on her way to the altar.

He "Fell for It"
"Home," says a contemporary, "is the place for real courtship. It used to be, in the days of horsehair sofas built for two. We remember one beside a window outside which a big rosebush perfumed the air. The sweetness of the girl, the beauty of the roses, and the loveliness of spring were an irresistible combination. We swallowed the hook."—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

ROMPERS

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Fanchon passed as she turned the pages of her new pattern book and gazed like one transfixed. It was the picture of a little boy which caught her eye, and the boy was wearing a captivating suit of rompers. At first that was the name the fashion book gave to the illustrated article of apparel. Fanchon smiled delightedly. The boy's yellow hair was just the color of the pale pointed material, while the blue of his appealing eyes matched exactly the rompers' lining. He was a lovely boy. A sadness came to the young woman's beautiful eyes as she studied the pattern.

Softness was foreign to Fanchon's usual laughing state. She had laughed her way through many difficulties and had looked at barriers high. So that now, in a brave yet inefficient sort of way, she had reached her present success in the business world of the great strange city. For Fanchon had come from across the wide waters, and the home that sheltered her childhood was on the faraway hills of France. But that time too was fast and gone and left forgotten.

This Madame Fanchon was a charming creature, with pleasant eyes ever coming to seek her favor. A dainty, lovely girl of a woman in whom as yet the most persistent admirer had failed to discover a heart.

New Fanchon bent over the pattern, and all at once in a rush of impulse or fancy she was looking over her shoulder, and pale soft material was in her hands. She turned quickly as she sought out blue fabric and laughed a little happy laugh as she eagerly started the stitching. A dimple popped out in her olive-tinted cheek as thought of common rompers displayed in the "Fanchon Shop." Then she suddenly decided that the rompers never would be displayed. They were one of her fancies, she could not tell just why this fancy so deeply held her, but the rompers would be left away in the square, ordinary box in all some little box might be found, perhaps, to suit them. For he must have yellow curls this boy, to receive Fanchon's gift and eyes wide and true. She felt the garment over it, then it was finished and triumphed over it, then it was finished and triumphed over it, then it was finished and triumphed over it.

Ludie called for her later to take her to dinner. Fanchon's merry companionship was cheering in her own discouragements. But as the two passed out through the street door a pathetic picture greeted them. A small boy very sturdy as to knees and elbows, and very dainty as to face and hands, bent anxiously over a prostrate yellow dog in the street before them.

"A car hit Tige," he sobbed in answer to Fanchon's quick questioning. "The dog is not badly hurt," a man nearby assured her.

The child looked up hopefully into the young woman's sympathetic face. "Please," he begged, "carry Tige upstairs for me."

Laughingly Fanchon waved her friend aside. "Goodbye Ludie," she said. "You know me, I will have to do as Sonny says."

The elevator stopped at the fifth floor of the building. It was there that the boy told her his father lived. Fanchon in her silks and furs obediently followed into the room, the lane dog in her arms. And as the two entered the disordered apartment, a man with rumpled hair as yellow as the small boy's own, and blue eyes as frank and as young in their gaze, looked up, confused at the invasion. He was sewing. Fanchon noticed, clumsily sewing with a darning needle upon some article of childish apparel. But when the man arose at his young son's abrupt introduction, his manner was appreciably courteous, and his grateful smile most winning.

"How kind," he thanked Fanchon. "To come to the relief of my little boy. He is sadly neglected these days. We seem to have difficulty in finding our housekeepers. Dickie Boy's mother died when he was born."
